THE WIRES OF THE WORLD, -The question how far snhmarine telegraph cables have been successful receives answer from a circular sent ns hy Messrs. Glass, Elliot & Co., of London, who are, perhaps, the most extensiva mannfacthrers of that kind of wire in the world. They have made and laid twenty-four cables, of a total length of 3,739 statute miles, and having a length of 6,169 miles of insalated wira; and on March 29th, of this year, all of this was in "perfect and successful working order," except 36 milee—lese than one per cent. The first cable of their manufacture was lald in 1854, and is yet working. The longest cable they have made and laid is 1,535 miles long, and connects Malta consists of one copper conductor, enveloped in a half inch of gutta percha, covered with eightesn number oleven iron wires, which form the cable, The cable next in length measuree 520 miles, and connects France with Algiers. It also is composed of a single copper conductor, covered with ten number foartean steel wires, covered with hemp. Cables having bat a single copper with more strands; and in their liet of twentygive cahles fourteen have single conductors.

NUMBER 1. The preservation of the American Union was enjoined upon us by Washington, and, unless important circumstances and reasons have arisen which wore not foreseen by him, his imperative advice is as binding upon us to-day as it was when first delivered.

The world's best hopes are identified with the preservation of our Union and liberty. Our prespectivo greatness, prosperity, peace and honor seem to depend upon our union Until within a few short menths no American doubted that the preservation of our Union as daty of the American people.

To resist the progress of this carse they were very utmost, and tho most violent were rendy to destroy the Constitution and the Union. the whole pewer of the nation, rejoiced in the opportunity of a sectional conflict, which was offered by the abelition anarchists. The standing quarrel of Massachusetts and South Carolina as the respective champions of antislavery and pro-slavery nltraism and violence, placed them in the front rank, as leaders in the sectional contest. The substantial unity of purpose in the two parties advancing in their different modes toward the electronic developed latent cordiality which they displayed to ench other in the last Presidential canvass.

We stand now amid the bloody convulsions of civil war. There are few who can look diepassionately at the causes of our misfortunes. But what will be said by the historian of the next century? It will be said that the evils against which the Northern party arose existed chiefly in their own imaginations, in the wild theories of political agitators and the novels of sentimental fanatics-that the rights for the defence of which tho Southern States assumed the attitude of military defiance were with Alaxandria. The South has been alarmed at anti-slavery agitation, and at one time that alarm had reasonable cause. The haughty attempt to exclude Missouri from the Union on account o the constitution formed by her citizens manifested an alarming disregard of the equal rights of the South. > The immediate pretext which has placed the North and South in battle array was the threatened Congressional legislation to exclude nogro slavery from the national territories. Ap prehending this, the extreme Southern States resolved that they would not suhmit to a government which treated them as an inferior class and claimed the right to discriminate against them in the territories acquired by the sion and civil war followed. Was this privilege of negro migration to the territories worth the bloody struggle and tremendous sacrifices of a civil war and the dissolution of the republic? Could that migrating privilege have been secured by secession or by war, would it not have been a terrific folly to sand-fold greater pecuniary value than the negro property concerned would ho worth, and giving besides the lives of hundreds of valnable citizens for every negro to whom we thus it vanishes away when submitted to the inpection of the combatants' friends. The privilege of importing an accidental negro now and then into New Mexico, if subjected to a border tariff of fifty dollars per head, would never have yielded ten thousand dollars-prohably not evon a hundred. In no possible mode could emigrants have been induced to pay as much as $50,000 for the privilege of introducing slaves into New Mexico. Nor is it at all probable that a sufficient slaveholding emigration could ever have been csrried into New Mexico to make it permanently a slave State, and thus add to the political influence of the slave-holding States.

> What interest has Kentucky or any other Southern State iu tempting her citizens to migrate to n new territory and to carry with them their slaves and other capital? None whatever. It is the centinued drain of population from Kentucky to the new States, which has exhausted her resources, checked ber growth, diminished her cities, prevented her whole territory from loine and reads and turnpikes, and her eight or ten million acres of unimproved land occapied by a thrifty population.

Our financial condition in reference to the Territories is like that of the cat under the bellglass when the working of the air-pump was withdrawing the air, leaving poor puss to perish in the vacuum. It is said that a shrewd old eat in this dangerous condition clapped her paw upon the valve through which she was being pumped to death, and thus pat a veto on the operations of the experimenter The Wilmet proviso would have partially ob structed the valve through which onr State has been drained by the territories of a certain portion of its capital, hut our politicians, nnlike the shrewd cnt, have insisted with frantic vehemence that the valve should be kept wide open and the pump vigorously worked to reduce the wealth and population of cur State. Aye, they have even insisted that we should fight rather than allow the valve to be closed by Northern politicians. Their indignation. however, was hut an ex post facto resolution after the offence had been committed, when no more available territory remained for contest, and national parties stood in battle array upon the question whether the stable doc should or should not be shat after the hors was gone. Ah, how blindly have party politicians led us with hambng issues through farcical contests, into our present bloody trag object to free emigration from one portion to another of our common country, but we do thin that when the interest of a State in migratio to a Territory is largely a minus quantity, the champions of State rights should not too fiercely demand that minus quantity for the honor or benefit of the State, or bring the State to the verge of civil war to maintnin (if the expression be allowable) a minas right-a right to be depleted and exhausted.

Not thus, however, was the question pro sented to the people of the South. They were told by extremists in both sections that slavery was to be surrounded, imprisoned as hy a wall of fire, within which it should be compressed and finally suffocated for want of room to ex pand.

They who in sincerity spoke thus forgot the vast area of the Soath in proportion to its population. They forgot how difficult it is to produce an excess of population in any country-how many centuries the world has been growing without producing anywhere that dresded Malthusian climax when starvation is to result from excess of numbers overburdening

The area of all the slave States of the Union was 851,000 square miles—they had not in 1850 reduced more than one-tenth of their land ulation of (1,700,000,000) seventeen hundre millione before they will hegin to encreach pen is a long ways off in a boundless future, and long ero the negro shall thus be crowded to the imagined vergo of starvation tho crowded lahoring population of the North will have passed into its horrors and perished b thousands.

For Judge of Court of Appeals, R. K. WILLIAMS. OF ORAVES COUNTY.

THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1862.

We publish this morning the first of short series of political essays from one of the most vigorons thinkers amongst us. The object of the writer is to contribute aomething toward the correction of the grievous errors which lie at the hottom of tho present condition of things, and thereby to promote the re-establishment of the government in its full constitutional integrity. He brings to the accomplishment of this object very signal ability and intelligence, and, though in the course of the series he may possibly lay down some positions more broadly and dwell on others with greater relative stress than we may deem altogether just, we are confident that the general drift and effect of the essays will prove both just and salutary. We commend the series to the best consideration of extremists North and South.

The special message of the President which we published in the Journal of yesterday is certainly a frank and manly paper. It does credit to the President's heart.

The policy so manfally confessed, however, is not one to be approved, and, though the exigency under which the pelicy was adopted and the undoubted integrity of the motive that prompted its adoption ought to shield the Executive from direct censure, still, under all the eireumstances, we are not sorry that Congress bas dono in the premises ex actly what it has done. Indeed, we recken the whole thing as fortunate. If the facts now disclosed by the President had been known beforehand, Congress would bave prebably not acted at all, and the case might have become a precedent of evil tendency. As it is, the President's message will do full justice to Mr. Cameron, leaving the action of Congress to stand as a solemn yot not nngracious testimony against the case as a precedent.

And here wo cannot ferbear to notice the marked propriety with which the President seems to have acted toward Congress in the matter. If he had eaused the facts he now discloses to be made known or intimated pro viously to his party friends in Congress, it is not nnfair to presumo that the subject would have been dropped, and he would bave escaped all censure direct or otherwise. Instead of this course, however, which a man of less sterling qualities might have pursued, he appears to have left Congress to its free decision in the case reserving to himself only the noble privilege of accepting his whole share of whatever censure should be pronounced against the pelicy he had in reality sanctioned. This surely is very handseme conduct. There is chivalry as well propriety in it. The fate of that ugly and unique politieal monster of which the fading initials, as nearly as they can he made out upon the knapsacks of her fleeing armies, aro "C. S. Peetry bas seldom produced so magnifient a myth as this: [For the Louisville Journal.]

LA PENSEE. The Beautiful lived in the Loud of the Blest, Thro' the Valley that true Love loves the best; But she did not live in a castle tower. With the infinite canopy for bor bower;

And a Tulip-tree at her lattice stood, Where the radiant oriole had wooed, And won the bride that had reared his brood. And among its leaves was another nest, Of a different bird with a gipey-creet, And the dow and the blue on its wings and breast

And there at the lattice, and all alone, Tho strange bird sang in a wild, sweet tone, Till the days of Spring were fledged and flown. And the fir-t that ever the Bcoutiful heard

For her heart was touched, and her soul was stirred And as soon as the day had gone to rest, She always rose with the star in the West, And opened her casement to the nest. Then from the leafy aureole

And kissed to sleep her white-robed soul. And blushed in her dream like a hashful haide, When her heart's Heart first beats at her side

For she dreamed that her lonely little quest, With the beavenly music in his breast, Was the soul that of all souls loved her hesl; And the rap'urous heart-warmth of the rose,

Seemed to blend with the jurity of the enows, In the perfect sweetness of her repose. But once, or the Night rose to depart, The Beautiful woke with a sudden etert.

And a fluttering, as it were, in ber heart. And she put forth ber hands in wistful quest, And a Hedgling lay on ber throbbing breast, That had just fluttered down from some near nest And the Beautiful in her faintness smiled,

And the light of her looks waxed mother-mild For the fledgling scemed like her own dear child! And the pressed it and pressed It to her lips, With the tenderest touch of ber floger-tlpe-And swooned and lay in a long celluse.

Arose, sho awoke from her trance-like rest :

And the music of life throbbed in her breast But upon her bosom the falry wins That woke her hefore with its fluttering, Had forevermore ceased quivering;

Then to a waiting thade she slahed: Open the casement very wide To the Tul-p-tree and the eventide." And the shadow obeyed her faint hebest, Was never agalu heard from the nest!

So the Beautiful lay like a queen in stite, In the darkness and slivnes of her fate— L'tterly, ntterly desolate. That che would have died to shield from barm. To her beart all night and kept It warm;

But sho took it away from her heart's nurest At dawn, and, behold, there was hine on its breas And the sign on its head of a coming creet! Like a bride of heaven in her robce of white, And passed to the casement opposite;

And mournfully, O most mournfully, And the zephyr sighed in the Tulip-tree-And she laid her haby-hird to rest In the Valley that true Love loves the hest

Then she loosed the bands that bound her bain

And it fell around her everywhere, Like a sudden midnight of deepair; So hack to her couch she softly crept, And sank upon it and wept and wept, While all of the shadows that served her slept

And for many days within her breact Which of her emile should he possert, But after the lapse of many days
Of mortal strife and the fever's blaze

Life conquered at last and won her grace.

And back to her came her memory And the streogth to rise, and the wish to see The hird's-nest in the Tulip-tree. And, behald, there was earth in the little nest

Had sprung and bloomed from the hirdling's breast; And ber soul was thrilled with divine surprise; For the Flower seemed to 1 er happy eyes Like an Iulimation from Paradice And the Beautiful eank down overwrought By the bliss and the pathes the flower brought, For it was the Flower of God's Thought;

Onr informant expresses the belief that there will be no general engagement at or near Corinth, as it will be the policy of Gen. Beauregard to fall beck noon Columbus, or some other point further Sonth. Indeed, he thinks Beenregard's present force at Corinth closs not exceed twenty thousand men, all of whom are thrown ont as pickets, which movement is designed to cover and make sure his retreat. In short he feels satisfied that we will have a repstition at Corinth of the scenes that heve rendered Menaseas, Bowling Green, and Yorktown famons in the wer.

BUST OF BISHOP SPALDING .- Mr. Bullet, the sculptor, of the firm of Muldoon & Co, has prepared n cast of Bishop Spaiding, which is one of boat's crew of elevan men went. They had hardthe most speeking likenesses we have ever seen in plaster. When it is transferred to merbie and his imparted to it the transparency of the marmorean substence, it promises to be e great triumph of art. The announcement that Almonta hes been TELEGRAPHIC NEWS. proclaimed President of Mexico seems to please some of cur Eastern contemporaries. We think, 2,500,000 pounds. Nearly 1,000,000 pounds have however, with the Albany Jonnel, that it will arrived within the last ten days. Only one small | prova end usws to the friends of political progress > left of Democracy in Mexico. His government was the most liberal that bas existed since the Spanish yeks was thrown off. That it was weak wes less its cwn fault then the fault of circumstances. It found the country in e state of anarchy, and while it failed wholly to restors order, i struggied hard to defend the rights of the people. As to Almonts, he is the simple agent of France and Spain. His pretended essumption of power is the most transperent sham. So far from being called into power by the voice of the people, even the names of his pretended supporters was obtained by fraud. Nobody doubts that he is "put up" to his work by the allies, end is playing a pertand a very igeoble one, icc-in the game of Mexican conquest. Whether he will be edopted es a permanent tooi, or used only temporarily until the people can be manipulated into accepting crowned despotism, remains to be seen.

The new treaty with Maxico has just been received hers. Its terms do not meet the views of the Government, and it will undonbredly be rejected by the Senete when it is submitted.

The city is perfectly quiet to-day.
It is anderstood that the Government has satisfactory edvices from several important points where our forces are opereting. It is certain thet everything thus far goes well. The Government entertains expectations that, in pursuance of plans laid out hefore the ratreat of Genarei Banks, and which ere now heing carried out, the rebel forces who ventured up the valley of the Shanandoah, will be ceptured.

It is considered certain here by the friends of the measure, and those who have taken most pains to inform themselves of the opinions of members, that the bankrupt bill will pass.

day. The other divisions marched with intervals of about six miles. On the moroing of the 6th the firing of common and masketry was heard in the direction of this place. Apprehending that a serious engagement had commerced, I went to General Grant's head-quarters in get information es to the best means of reaching the battle field with the division that hid errived. At the same time orders were despatched to the divisione in the rear to leave their trains and push forward by forced marchee. I learned that General Grant had just started, leaving orders for General Nelson to march to the river opposite Pittsturg Landing, to be ferried across. An examination of the road up the river discovered it to be impracticable for artillery, and General Nelson was directed to leave his to be carried forward by eteamers.

discovered it to be impracticable for artillery, and General Nelson was directed to leave his to be carried forward by steamers.

The impression exceeded of Sivannah that the firing was only an affair of ontposts, the same thing baying occurred for two or three previous days, but as it continued I detarmined to go to the scene of action, and accordingly etarted with my chief of staff, Col. Fry, on a steamer which I had ordered to get under steam. As we proceeded up the river groups of soldiers were seen upon the west back, and it ason became evident that they were stragglers from the army that wes engaged. The groups increased in fize and frequency until as we approached the landing they amounted to whoie a manifest and almost regiments, and at the landing the hanks ewermed with a confused mass of men of various regiments. The number could not have been less than four or five thousand, and later in the day it became much greater. Finding General Grant at the landing I requested bim to send sloumers to Savannah to bring up General Crittenden's division, which had errived during the moroing, and then went ashore with him. The throng of disorganized and demeralized troops increased continuelly we fresh facilities from the battle, which which had errived during the moroing, and then went ashore with him. The throng of disorganized and demeralized trops increased continually by fresh fugitives from the battle which steadily drew nearer the landing, and with these were mingled great numbers of teame, all striving to get se near as possible to the river. With few exceptions all efforts to form the troops and move them forward to the fight interly failed. In the meantime the enemy had made anch progress against our troops, that his nrilliery and musketry began to play into the vital epot of the position, and some porsons were killed on the backs at the very landing. Gen. Nelson, arrived with Col. Ammeu's brigade at this opportone moment. It was immediately posted to meet the strack at that point, and with a hattery of artillery which heppeced to be on the ground, and was brought into ection, opened fire on the enemy and repulsed him. The action of the gniboats also contributed very much to that result. The attack at that point was not renewed, night having come on, and the firing ceased on both sides. In the meantime, the remainder of Gen. Nelson'e division crossed, and Gen. Crittenden'e arrived from Savannah by steemers. After examining the ground ae well as was possible nt night in front of the line on which Gen. Grant's troops bed formed, and as far to the right as Gen Sherman'e division, I directed Nelson's ard Crittendon's divisions to form in front of that line sud move forward as soon as it was light in the morning. Soon after 5 o'clock on the morning of the 7th,
Gen. Nelson's and Gen. Crittenden'e divisione, the only ones yet arrived on the ground, moved promptly forward to neet the enemy. Nelson's division marching in line of battle soon came upon his pickete, drove them ie, and, at about 6 o'clotk, received the fire of his artillery. The division was here halted and Mendeohall's battery brought into action to reply, while Crittenden's division was being mut have position on the right of Nelson was here halted and Mendeohall's battery brought into action to reply, while Crittenden's division was being put into position on the right of Nelson's. Bartlett's battery was posted in the centre of Crittenden's division in a commanding position, opposite which the enemy was discovered to be formed in force. By this time McCook's division arrived on the ground and was immediately formed on the right of Crittenden's. Skirmishers were through to the front and a strong body of them to guard our left flank, which, though somewhat protected by rough ground, It was supposed the anemy might attempt to turn and in fact did, but was handsomaly repulsed with great loss. Each brigade furnished its own reserve, and in addition Boyle's brigade from Crittenden's division, though it formed at first in the line, was kept comewhat hack when the line advanced, to be used ac occasion might require. I found on the ground parts of about two reg ments, perhaps one thousand men, and and another than the second was cirallarly employed on the left. I saw other strangling traces of Gen Grant's force. The first I directed to act with Gen. McLook's attack, and the second was cirallarly employed on the left. I saw other strangling traces of Gen Grant's force immediately on Gen. McCook's right, and some firing had already commenced there. I have no direct anowiedge of the disposition of the remainder of Gen. Grant's force, nor is it my province to speak of them. Those that came under my direction in the way I have estated, rendered willing and efficient service during the day. ve etated, rendered willing and efficient service ave etated, rendered willing and theorems who unlog the day.

The force under my command occupied a line of about a mile and a half. In front of Nelson's division was an open field, partially acroened towards his right by n skirt of woods, which extended through to the enemy's line, with a thick noder rowth in front of the left brigade of Critenden's division; then en open line in front of Critenden's division; then en open line in front of McCock's right woods again, with a dense un

What I afterwards learned was the Hamburg road, which crossee Lick creek a mile from its mouth, passed perpendicularly through the line of battle near Nelson's left. On a threshiptly oblique to us and beyord the open fields, the enemy was formed with a battery at front of Nelson's left, a battery commanding the seme woods and the field in front of Crittenden's left, and flanking the field in front of Nelson; a battery commanding the seme woods and the field in front of Grittenden's right and McCock's left. A short distance in rear of the anemy's left were the encapy held.

While my troops were getting into position, tha fire was kept ap between Mendenhall's battery and the enemy's 2d battery, with some effect. Bartlett's battery was hardly in position before the enemy's 2d battery, when and cont', and with everity during the greater part of the day and uctil the enemy was driven from the field. The action was commenced in this division by Gen.

The pursuit was continued no further that dey. I were without cavalry, and the different corps had become a good deal scattered in a pursuit over a country which screened the movements of the enemy, and the roads of which I knew practically nothing. In the beginning of the pursuit, thinking it probable the enemy had retired partly by the Homburg road, I had creered Nolson's division ferward as far as Lick crosk on that road, from which, I afterwards learned, the direct Corinth road is separated by a difficult ravine which empties into Lick croek. I therefore occupied myself with examining the ground and getting the different divisions into position, which was not effected until sometime after dark.

The Mobile Register says everything was quiet at Fort Morgan up to yesterday. The enemy are keeping their customary vigils. On Monday night the attention of the fort was attracted to night the attention of the fort was attracted to some myeterious light going up in the direction of Navy Cove. An armed party, eent to investigate the affair, returned with a boat load of Spaniards, who, it is supposed, were giving notice to vessels about running the blockade.

The Register sams up the following Confederate successes: Williamsburg, Gilos county, Plnm Point, Scott's cawalry, Blorgan'e, Farmington, James river, Tennessee Gnerillas, Valley of Virginia and a general check of the enemy's advance everywhere. It does not recognize the evacuation of the coast positione, Vorktown, Norfolk, and Pensscola, regarding them as positive rebel and Pensscola, regarding them as positive rebe advantages.

The Register also contains efficial correspondence between our fleet and the Vicksburg authorionce between our fleet and the vicksburg authorities, in answer to Capt. Lee's demand for the surrender of Vickspurg and its defences, directed to the authorities of Vicksburg.

Mayor Lundry replies that the military anthorities have erected no defences, and that there are none within the corporate limits. Great Bretain, May 16th.—In the House of Commoos Mr. Layard eaid the government had received from Lord Lyons a cryv of the report of a committee of the House of Representatives of the United Statos on the Reciprocity Treaty, and had no objection to lay it on the table. The Times editorially says the advantages gained in the West by the Federals have been such as it is impossible to overrate, and are in singular contrast to the slow progress in Virginia. It also expatiates on the importance of the capture of New Orleans, and says the North has a right to presume the hour of final success is approaching. The Times also says the robels ere apparently as determined as ever, but from the manner in which the military loaders have allowed themselves to be worsted on the Alississippi, the confidence of their own people and foreigners must be shaken in ARRIVAL OF THE EUROPA. their own people and foreigners must be shaken in their ultimate encoss Queenstown, May 18, by telegraph from Liver-

The Times remarks that it would be mockery to ask Lancachire to send ships to Boaufort for cotton, now that the great emporism of the Mississippi, where millions of acres of cotton-growing land are in the power of the Federals, has fallen. It in therefore an obvious policy to trade with New Orleans to get further supplies of cotton for want of the Europeans of planters, who still assert their allegiance to the Southern Republic.

The steamer S. R. Spalding has arrived with thirty-three sick soldiers from McClellan's army. The bark Pallas from Ballas reported the U. S. steamer Tyler had captured an irou steamer loaded with cotton and sent her to New York.
